First Time Home Buyers Say “I Do” to Champion Agent
Capital Style Magazine Says Pat Ogle is Best for First Timers

Stepping out into the world of homeownership can be a little nerve-wracking, but Champion agent Pat Ogle is able to calm those first-time jitters, even among newlyweds. That’s why he received the Capital Style Bridal Readers’ Choice 2016 Award for Best Realtor for First Time Buyers.

The award recognizes Annapolis area businesses which specialize in weddings.

Planning all the details for the big day is hard enough, without worrying about where you’re going to live after the ceremony. Ogle says he works to be sure the honeymoon streams seamlessly into a happy new homecoming.

“I like helping them through the process, educating them on the things they need to know, taking them to see properties and the looks on their faces when we’re sitting at the settlement table and they’re getting their first set of keys,” Ogle said.

Ogle, a former Marine, says he emphasizes loyalty and commitment to all his clients.

“Pat’s been with Champion Realty since the very beginning, 28 years ago,” remarked Champion President and CEO Jon Coile. “He remembers what it’s like to be new to the housing market—that’s why he can make new buyers feel so comfortable in their search and excited about their home purchase.”

Champion Vice President Patricia Savani manages the Annapolis office, where Ogle is based.

“I’ve relied on Pat to work well with all of our buyers for many years,” said Savani. “It’s no surprise that his confident and relaxed manner is sought after by young people getting ready to make those important life commitments.”

Ogle says he’s overjoyed at being selected for the award. He adds that it reflects the training provided by Champion.

The Capital Style is a lifestyle magazine by, for and about local women: their lives, families, kitchens, businesses, health, homes, buying interests and trends. All the results of the Capital Style Bridal Readers' Choice Contest will be published in the magazine on February 14.
